

Mayor Thomas M. Menino, City of Boston
Commissioner Esther Kaplan, Office of Cultural Affairs

Celebrate the season with all of the cultural activity you will find in BOSTON NOW, your 'neighbor in the know.' The City of Boston offers a wide variety of wintertime activities for everyone, from skating on the Frog Pond to traditional performances, cutting edge theatre, and much more.

The winter months are full of wonderful plays and concerts in neighborhoods throughout Boston. The nearly 200 events listed in this calendar reflect the wide array of activities that make Boston a vibrant city to enjoy all year long. And remember, by attending a concert, a holiday festival, a gallery or a museum opening, you are supporting Boston's arts and culture community. In addition, this edition of Boston NOW contains a holiday gift guide beginning on page 4.

The City of Boston is proud to support the Boston cultural organizations and individuals who contribute so much to our life in the city. I invite you to join us and enjoy Winter in the City.

CREATIVE HOLIDAY SHOPPING

By Melissa Phegley

As winter's chill heralds holiday cheer and you prepare for the season of giving this year, the Mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs urges you to get creative!

The arts are flourishing throughout the 19 neighborhoods of Boston — home to over 300 cultural institutions. Classes, workshops, tickets, memberships, merchandise and donations make heartwarming, one-of-a-kind gifts that also give back to Boston's cultural community. Creative shopping is a great way to give and a great way to give back.

Whatever rings your bell — theater, music, dance, visual arts, crafts, history, literary arts — you'll find something for everyone in this unique guide to holiday shopping. This guide is, however, merely a sampling of ideas and we encourage you to support your favorite organization and share the arts with someone you love. Boston NOW, your "neighbor in the know", hopes to inspire you with a few suggestions:
